To celebrate its 30 years of innovation, The Warren Centre is seeking your help to create an inspired vision for the Australian industries of the next 30 years and to identify the strategies for us to build on technology innovation and industry leadership to make it a reality.

From technology innovation to industry leadership – a vision for Australian industries in the next 30 years

Join us for this unique opportunity to explore the future. Be an active part of a journey which:

• Breaks open the potential for game-breaking technologies to impact on Australia’s future industry landscape,
• Looks at the reality from the perspective of fellow emerging and high-level achievers, and
• Creates a vision for Australian industries and the strategies and policies to achieve it.

Starting with the views of the U30 generation drawn from a nation-wide competition seeking inspirational visions for future technologies and industries from those for whom the next 30 years is their life.

Friday 8th November 2013

Are you under 30?

What is your inspired vision for the technologies and industries to build Australia in the next 30 years?

Tell us and you could win $5,000!

The Warren Centre is holding a national competition open to those under the age of 30 to identify and articulate the most visionary concepts of the likely game breaking technologies over the next 30 years and how world-class industries can be developed from them in Australia.

Their challenge is to articulate and stimulate an audience with your vision in no more than 5 minutes.

The ten best visions entered will be presented at the Vision30 Seminar in Sydney on Friday 8 November 2013 which aims to bring together high level and emerging leaders, innovators and entrepreneurs from around Australia to identify where Australia’s industry will be in 30 years and how we will get there.

The vision which most captures the attention of the audience will win $5,000

Register now to enter for the opportunity to be enter this unique event

Entries close on 4 October

More detail about the seminar and the competition as well as on-line registration can be found at: http://thewarrencentre.org.au/activities/vision30/
